

Kei-Sho Chronicle -September 2021

G'day everyone, I'm Llew. It's been a while since the last Kei-Sho Chronicle. It's the end of September and we're well into the new school term, but things have been very different to normal. In this issue, I will talk about how Kei-Sho has started the second term.

Restarting School:

Restarting School

Starting on September 1st, Kei-Sho restarted school in our second term of 2021. With Covid-19 still being a threat, many things have been done differently. To prevent infections, our opening ceremony was held through the announcement system.

In addition, to keep students safe from Covid-19, Kei-Sho also started hybrid classes. Half the students would come to school, and the other half would stay home and watch their classes online. This meant there were less students at school, and less chance of students getting sick.

Open Day:

Kei-Sho has also begun preparation for next year's students with an open day held on September 18th. As a change from previous years, graduate students were kind enough to assist so that current students could remain safe.

Many families have shown interest in Kei-Sho. I am looking forward to the new year already!
