

Kei-Sho Chronicle – April 2023

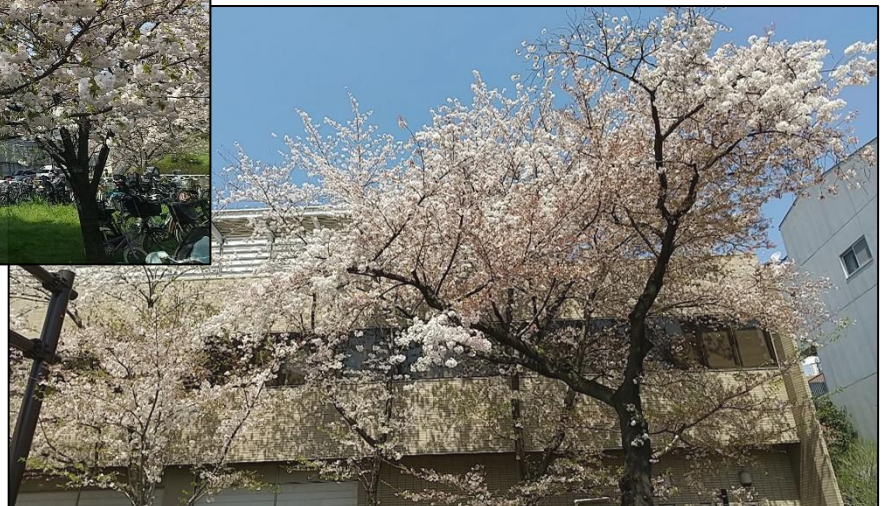

A New School Year

This Issue:

Entrance Ceremony

Opening Ceremony

Hello everyone! Welcome back to another year at Kei-Sho, and another year of Kei-Sho Chronicles. With the new school year, teachers and students are busy with all the ceremonies and preparation. I was late to see the Sakura this year, many of the trees I saw were becoming green. But they were still beautiful. Unfortunately, most of the Sakura had fallen before the entrance ceremony, but it was beautiful while it lasted. In this month's issue, we will look at Kei-Sho's entrance ceremony, and opening ceremony.

Entrance Ceremony:

On the 5th of April, Kei-Sho held the first event of the year. The Entrance Ceremony for the new first-year students. The new students arrived at Kei-Sho in the morning and proceeded to their homerooms, where they met their teachers and fellow classmates. The ceremony started with the new students entering the hall while the Keika Symphonic Band was playing. (It is always nice to hear the band play)

The ceremony itself was like previous years, with the students being introduced, and with speeches from the principal, PTA president, as well as representatives of the current students and new students.

After the ceremony, the students left the hall to applause and another song from the band. They then returned to their classrooms for instructions and to prepare for the new year. Welcome to Kei-Sho! Do your best!

Opening Ceremony:

The next time the new students came to school was April 8th. This time, with the new 2nd and 3rd year students as well. On the 8th, Kei-Sho held the first Opening Ceremony of the year. But before the ceremony could start, the new students had to be introduced to the current students. While the 2nd and 3rd year students waited in the hall, the 1st year students entered, class by class. After they had all entered, the student council welcomed them with a speech and flowers. And with that, the new students became a part of Kei-Sho.

After the new students were welcomed, the opening ceremony began as usual. One large part of the first opening ceremony, was the introduction of teachers. This year, Kei-Sho only has one new teacher, but many teachers have changed roles, including the principal and vice-principal. The ceremony ended with speeches from the guidance officer and the new principal.

The spring holidays have ended, and a new year has started at Kei-Sho! Some things have changed, but many things remain the same.

Do your best everyone!
